

COSCO calls on Ottawa to provide leadership to strengthen Medicare

BRITISH COLUMBIA's largest federation of seniors has called on the federal, provincial and territorial governments to negotiate "a new comprehensive health accord that protects, transforms and strengthens our national health care system."

At a special meeting held in Vancouver in April – 11 days after the expiry of the national health accord – about 100 seniors unanimously adopted a declaration that quality health care must be available to every resident of Canada without discrimination, and regardless of ability to pay.

"All levels of government have a role to play in the delivery of quality and accessible health care," said Lorraine Logan, President of the 107,000 member Council of Senior Citizens' Organizations of B.C.

"The federal government should give strong leadership in enforcing national standards, not walking away from the table and refusing to negotiate a new accord," said Logan.

"To ensure Medicare is not fragmented, Ottawa must provide co-

ELDER ABUSE:

It's time to face the reality

By Alice Edge

COSCO Second Vice-President

THE BC PROVINCIAL government has issued a statement recognizing June 15 as World Elder Abuse Awareness Day. A very important event as according to federal government literature one in five Canadians believe they know of a senior who might be experiencing some form of abuse.

Elder abuse is any action by someone in a relationship of trust that results in harm or distress to an older person. Neglect is a lack of action by that person in a relationship of trust with the same result.

Abuse takes many forms such as: physical (hitting, pushing, shaking, inappropriate physical or chemical restraints, harm created by over or under medicating), psychological (includes actions that decrease their sense of self-worth and dignity), financial (includes actions that decrease the financial worth of an older person without benefit to that person) and neglect (includes inactions that may result in harm to an older person).

In the past year I have served as the Ombudsperson for COSCO, assisting seniors throughout the province to access governmental services federally or provincially, navigate the health care system, and find health services, which are not funded. For me it has highlighted the plight of many seniors in our communities who are bewildered, angry, frustrated, sad and overwhelmed by the lack of support they need.

So as World Elder Abuse Awareness Day arrives, I wonder if systemic abuse of the elderly exists in our country, province and communities. Have we neglected the elderly in exchange for tax credits, a few more dollars of tax relief (which the government promptly takes back in user fees like tolls, increased payment for health insurance)? Have we offered in the place of well resourced sustainable long term home care and health care, charity-funded services that are piecemeal, provide no continuity and leap from one project lily pad to the next?

What we need for Seniors' Week in BC and World Elder Abuse Awareness Day is a strong declaration that we should and must do better for the elderly. If we help them we will help everyone. It is not about entitlement it is about fairness, justice and dignity.

New health accord needed to prevent fragmentation of public health care ernment has launched a “stealth attack” on Medicare, with reductions in funding scheduled for future years.

“We need a national debate, a national conversation on the future of Medicare,” said McBane, adding that the withdrawal of federal leadership will lead to a fragmentation of service.

“This is a fight to maintain access so people can get care based on need,” he said.

Wendell Potter, former head of communications at a large health insurance company in the USA, said he walked away from his job when he realized private corporations were not improving access, were not improving quality of care, and looked on health care as a major profit centre.

“With help from the Fraser Institute, the company misinformed Americans about Canada’s health care system, calling it the slippery slope to socialism,” said Potter.

He called on Canadians to carefully examine the misleading language used by those who promote privatization.

“Sound the alarm” said Potter. “You can lose Medicare for yourselves, your children, your grandchildren and future generations.”

Alex Himelfarb – director of the Glendon School of Public and International Affairs at York University, former Clerk of the Privy Council and Secretary to the Cabinet for three prime ministers – said that private health care is far more expensive and has longer wait times.

Himelfarb called for a national Pharmacare program, a better approach to care for chronic illness, and the integration of home care and home support into Medicare.

“Countries that have done that have a more sustainable health care system than we have,” he said. “We have lots of work to do to make Medicare strong, better and more affordable. We need a clear vision for the future. We need federal leadership – and we don’t have it,” he said.

Seniors at the meeting expressed outrage that the federal government has refused to negotiate a new health accord, effectively ending Medicare as a national program.

They were also frustrated that four B.C. Conservative Members of Parliament – including Richmond MP Alice Wong, the minister of state for seniors – have refused to meet with them to discuss these issues.

Clockwise from top: Alex Himelfarb, Wendell Potter, and Lorraine Logan warned of the need to defend and enhance Medicare for Canadians.

PRESIDENT'S REPORT

Keeping you up-to-date on COSCO'S advocacy for seniors

By Lorraine Logan
President, COSCO

THIS WILL be a short article to update our members, affiliates and associates on where we are focussing our advocacy efforts and resources.

One of our major achievements to date is the campaign jointly sponsored by the Retired Teachers Association of B.C. and COSCO concerning the Canada Health Accord.

Through the efforts of this sub-committee, all of the Members of Parliament in B.C. have been contacted, questioned, informed and been asked to support a new and better Health Accord Agreement with the provinces and territories.

This campaign will continue into 2015 as a Federal Election unfolds.

We have also given support to our B.C. Health Coalition in their court challenge with Dr. Day and the private clinics.

This issue comes to trial in September. We will continue to support this effort.

The Postal Carrier cut-backs and development of community mail boxes continues to be an issue.

Art Kube, our Past President, has been addressing this at various events. This is also on-going and we will try to influence the Federal Government that this creates quite a hardship for older adults and older adults with physical disabilities.

We now have active committees to relate, resource and research our main areas of concern.

The following delegates are now Chairs of their respective portfolios:

- Barb Mikulec – Housing.
- Kathleen Jamieson – Health.
- Jean Sickman – Policy and Planning.
- Pat Brady – Finance.
- Lorraine Logan – Transportation.
- Alice Edge/Alex Hui – Communication/Facebook.
- Gudrun Langolf – Legislative/regulatory matters eg. BC Hydro (BC Utility Commission and Public Advocacy Centre), Media (CRTC), Elder Law etc. and our webpage.
- Ralph Steeves – Organizing.

As we move forward with issues and concerns that we perceive or that are presented to COSCO, these committee Chairs will take on these challenges and with the delegates' and members' input we will attempt to resolve issues or work with the parties involved to create a better environment for our seniors.

The table officers recently met with the new Senior's Advocate, Isobell Mackenzie, on April 8th and we had a good opportunity to discuss our concerns and enforce our COSCO motto, "Work and Plan with Seniors, not for them."

We met for approximately three hours and we are hopeful that COSCO and the Senior Advocate's Office will be collaborating on systemic issues that affect all older adults.

We have been assured that as her mandate begins to develop, that COSCO will be one of the groups sitting on any Advisory Council.

Regarding Coastal Ferries, the hardship in fare increases along with schedule reductions has certainly caused great concern for our older population relying on these transportation services.

COSCO has been supporting our branch in Sechelt/Gibsons with hundreds of signed petitions, letters of concern, attending rallies and generally attempting to get this government to re-think these decisions and reopen a real public consultation. This campaign will also continue.

The Table Officers and Chairs of our committees will be meeting in June to formulate a kind of strategic plan of "next steps" for COSCO in the coming years.

This should identify what we are now doing, what we may need to do and confirm and maintain our policies that identify with our mandate to Advocate for Seniors.

One of the slight changes to our delegates meeting is to encourage our delegates to "report out" on their specific concerns that occur in their own associations or groups.

Art had begun this process to some extent last year and we will continue to seek input from our members.

Stay tuned.

Fighting for public health care

Why is Harper crushing public health care?

This special report is reprinted with permission from The Advocate, the quarterly news magazine published by BC FORUM, a COSCO affiliate. Visit www.bcforum.ca to learn more about BC FORUM.

"I am concerned that without leadership from Ottawa and with reduced money, we are going to see a further slowdown of reforms, more regional disparities, and a push for more private health care."

– Roy Romanov, Chair of the Royal Commission on the Future of Health Care in Canada

Taking action to defend Medicare

CANADIANS MAY face bed shortages and more expensive prescription drugs now that the 10-year Health Accord between Ottawa and the provinces has expired. The federal government has walked away from the table, refusing to negotiate a new agreement.

“It means the end of any rational planning for the health care system,” said Michael McBane, executive director of the Canadian Health Coalition (CHC).

To draw attention to the importance of the issue, thousands of Canadians participated in 40 events across the country on March 31, the day the Health Accord expired.

No federal leadership

McBane said a federal voice is needed to work towards equality of access throughout the country.

“The voice of Canada is the federal government, not the provinces. So national standards – to ensure equity of access regardless of where you live or your ability to pay – is a uniquely federal role. Nobody else can play that role,” said McBane.

On the same day, the federal government shut down the Health Council of Canada which reported on health care problems and identified best practices to fix them.

“Without the Council, no one is doing that work,” he said.

The Harper government has also announced, without consultation, that it is changing the funding arrangement with provinces and territories. They have eliminated the built-in equalization mechanism, starting this year. They will cut Ottawa’s anticipated contribution to Medicare by $36 billion, starting in 2017.

“Instead of negotiating a new Health Accord, Conservatives are

Stephanie Smith of the BCGEU, along with Diane Wood and Marion Pollack (not pictured) of BC FORUM, were among the thousands who participated in a national day of action to call for federal leadership in public health care.

downloading health care costs onto the provinces and turning their backs on a system that Canadians have relied on for generations,” said Libby Davies, NDP Health Critic.

“As a result, we will see increased disparities across the country – longer wait times, reduced front-line services, and lack of access to home and long-term care,” she said.

Rich Alberta gets more

The end of the equalization system means the federal contribution to health care will fluctuate widely across Canada.

Alberta gets an extra $1 billion this year. B.C. loses $250 million.

The federal share of health costs will be slashed from 20 percent to 11 percent in Manitoba. It will be increased from 15 percent to 20 percent in Alberta.

The funding changes imposed by the Harper government will undermine the provinces’ ability to meet the requirements of the Canada Health Act, said McBane.

“You can’t have a universal social program unless you have the financial means to have poorer regions subsidized or financially supported,” he said.

“The sole gainer in this is Alberta. Almost everybody else loses,” said McBane.

We need national Pharmacare

THE NEED for a national pharmacare program is becoming desperate, says Dr. Jeff Turnbull, chief of staff at Ottawa Hospital. Patients are doing without medicine that could potentially cure them because they can't afford it.

"For the first time in my career, I have patients saying: I just can't afford this. I am going to have to live with my illness," says Turnbull.

Patients are left to struggle with painful and debilitating disease for the rest of their lives because new drugs for rheumatoid arthritis cost $30,000. The cost of drugs to combat hepatitis C is in the range of $80,000.

Turnbull despaired that doctors will have to make life-and-death decisions based on people's ability to pay.

A study by the Canadian Medical Association found that one in ten Canadians cannot afford to fill prescriptions. The record is worst in B.C. where 17 percent do without prescribed drugs.

The fragmented pharmacare systems found in Canada lack the administrative efficiency and purchasing power of a single-payer system which could save Canadians as much as $14-billion per year.

The Health Council of Canada, now disbanded by the Harper government, initially worked towards a pharmacare plan for catastrophic drug coverage, aiming to reduce costs through bulk federal purchasing and coordinated prescribing practices.

The Harper government, however, began to back away from this initiative shortly after the 2006 election. It is an issue that requires federal leadership. The provinces cannot do it on their own.

Health care: Now is the time

AFTER A YEAR and a half of consultations with thousands of Canadians in public forums and meetings with key stakeholders, NDP Health Critic Libby Davies (Vancouver East) has released a report that summarizes what she heard, and what needs to be done to improve public health care.

"This document outlines the concerns we heard from Canadians regarding primary care, home and long-term care, mental health, prescription drug coverage, and preventative health care," said Davies.

The work by Davies also outlines the steps that New Democrats propose to strengthen Medicare. Among the highlights, the report says the NDP will:

- Revoke the Conservatives' unilateral decision to take $36 billion in anticipated funding out of health care.
- Support the development of new agreements with provinces and territories to improve health outcomes for Canadians.
- Invest in prevention by addressing the social determinants of health to ensure all Canadians have a decent income, access to healthy food, affordable housing and a social safety net.

Libby Davies, NDP Health Critic

- Ensure better value by working with provinces to make better use of resources and fundamentally change how health care services are organized, managed and delivered.

"The federal government has a clear role in ensuring that health care in Canada remains public and accessible," says the report.

"In particular, the federal government must investigate and enforce the ban on troublesome practices such as double-billing, queue-jumping, and increased privatization of medically necessary services."

The report identifies four major pillars for action: better access to prescription drugs, better care across the continuing care spectrum, timely access to primary care and prevention.

As an example of problems in the system, the report notes that half of Canadians cannot get a same day or next day appointment with their family doctors, thereby increasing the pressure on hospital emergency rooms.

Taking a stand on health care

The following resolution was adopted unanimously by COSCO delegates on April 11

Whereas access to quality health care is a fundamental right of every Canadian resident, regardless of race, gender, disability, political belief, social conditions, location, or ability to pay.

Whereas a system of public and non-profit health care, publicly administered and delivered on a not-for-profit basis, contributes to the economic welfare of Canada and provides its citizens with high quality health care.

Whereas all levels of government have a role to play in the delivery of quality and accessible health care; and that the Federal Government should give strong leadership in enforcing national standards and providing coordination, innovation, and federal transfers at a level that secures the integrity and reinforcement of the Canada Health Act of 1984.

Whereas all Canadians should have equitable access to safe, affordable, and appropriate medications; many Canadians depend on medications for their very lives.

Whereas Canadians should have the security of a continuum of community-based integrated services that includes a universal system of home care, home support and long-term care services, and hospice and palliative care; and that this continuum of services should be an integral part of a Canadian comprehensive health care system.

Whereas a comprehensive national health care system includes education, prevention, diagnosis, counselling, and timely treatment.

Therefore be it resolved that the federal, provincial and territorial governments be urged to negotiate a new comprehensive health accord that protects, transforms, and strengthens our national health care system. This must include human and financial resources including a 6 per cent escalator, as well as a national seniors health care plan and a national pharmaceutical strategy that will improve health outcomes for Canadians; and further

That this meeting of the Affiliates of the Council of Senior Citizens' Organizations of British Columbia ask other seniors organizations and individuals to join us in declaring our commitment to use all democratic means to ensure that the foregoing proposals are implemented in a new Canadian health accord.

Making the most of new communication tools

By Alice Edge, Chair, COSCO Communications Committee

New technology has certainly changed how we communicate with our family, friends or community. Seniors have demonstrated they are as adept as the young folks at using the computer for email, research, skyping, Facebook, and tweeting.

Some have used smart phones to take and send photos of themselves and their activities and shared them with the world in real time. We have been encouraged and educated by our children and grandchildren.

COSCO has jumped on the techie bandwagon and its first fledgling journey is on Facebook. The plan is to report events attended by the executive, highlight articles and activities of interest and transition some communication like minutes of meetings and the newsletter to those who have access to computers or smart phones.

As you are likely aware postal rates have increased significantly and like so many other non-profit organizations, COSCO has to administer its finances wisely.

In addition to Facebook, our web site is being re-designed to make it more esthetically pleasing, user friendly and useful in information sharing. Our plan is to use it for membership application/renewal and payment of fees in the future.

I would like to thank Gudrun Langolf, Second Vice President and Alex Hui, Member at Large for their support, enthusiasm and creativity to shape COSCO's future in the world of technology.

COSCO has heard your concerns that hard copy/paper communication must continue for the foreseeable future to continue the communication connection with our affiliates, associate members and the public.

A Campaign to “Keep the Heart in Medicare”

By JoAnn Lauber, on behalf of the Campaign Committee

WITH THE imminent expiry of the 2004 Health Accord on March 31, 2014, and the refusal of the federal government to negotiate with the provinces and territories to establish a new agreement, members of the BCRTA and COSCO sprang into action.

As seniors, many of us could remember, or had heard of, what life was like before Medicare, when a serious illness or accident could consign a family to months, even years, of struggle and toil to pay off medical debts. We were not about to sit idly by and allow our public health care system to be quietly dismantled.

We set out to arrange meetings with B.C.'s 36 Members of Parliament. During February, March and April, more than 90 BCRTA members and COSCO colleagues made contact with almost every B.C. MP. Twenty-nine MPs we met face-to-face in discussion. From two, we received printed communication. Two more we still hope to visit. Only three MPs would not meet with us, though we live in their constituencies and, as seniors, we do vote!

Some of the MPs who hold portfolios in Ottawa proved to be the most challenging to meet: “too busy” or no response, apparently not interested.

We asked the MPs whether they agreed that there is a need for federal leadership to negotiate a new 10-year health accord in order to secure the health care needs of citizens in all regions and into the future.

We asked them if they supported our requests, which were that a new Accord should include the following:

- Adequate and stable federal funding.

The first MP visit of the campaign: constituents Dale Lauber, JoAnn Lauber, MP Peter Julian (Burnaby- New Westminster), constituents David Scott and Bonnie Scott.

- A continuing Care Plan that integrates home, facility-based long term, respite and palliative care.
- A universal public drug plan that provides equitable access to safe and appropriate medication.

We were especially concerned about Ottawa's unilateral decision to reduce the health care funding and to change the funding to a per capita grant, which will mean losses in transfer funds to most provinces.

Each advocacy group sent us a report of the visit as they interpreted it.

Generally, those who spoke with Conservative MPs found their response to be similar-- that the health transfer funds were adequate and that the criteria surrounding future transfers were reasonable. When the changes came in 2017, the provinces would decide how to use the funds and how to make up the short fall.

The Liberal Party MPs generally support the three tenets we proposed for a new health accord, though they were not committed to the annual 6% escalator. Instead, they would institute stronger accountability measures to ensure that the provinces were meeting set goals.

The Green Party MP supported a new Accord, not only protecting what is good in the system but also expanding and strengthening it.

The NDP MPs agreed enthusiastically with our proposals. They could see that a national drug plan would serve all Canadians well, ensure that all citizens had access to needed medications, and save billions of dollars.

In addition to visiting MPs, advocates submitted opinion articles, letters to editors and health accord materials to other community members. They sent valentines to the Prime Minister and to other federal ministers urging them to “Keep the Heart in Medicare.” And they organized a number of public meetings.

As next steps, we have asked for a meeting with B.C.'s health minister, to see how the funding cuts will be dealt with here, and we are reaching out to national and provincial groups that share our concerns.

It is our intention to make this an election issue at all three levels of government.

Defending public health care in the courts

Patients, doctors, health groups join in court battle with for-profit clinic seeking US-style system

A GROUP OF patients, doctors and health care advocates has won the right to present expert evidence defending Canadian health care in the BC Supreme Court. A constitutional challenge by private, for-profit clinic owner Brian Day could determine the future of Canadian public health care.

“Brian Day’s plan to bring US-style health care to Canada would be disastrous for Canadians,” said Dr. Rupinder Brar of Canadian Doctors for Medicare.

“If Dr. Day wins, physicians will be allowed to charge patients any amount they like for services, and patients who can pay will get faster care than the rest of us. A win for Dr. Day will mean skyrocketing costs and longer wait times in the public health system as it loses doctors to a parallel private system.”

Brar said this could force patients to produce a credit card before getting the care they need.

“If we use all the evidence we have right now as to how to improve what we have, we can have a fantastic system with good access based on need and not ability to pay,” she said.

Dr. Day operates the Vancouver-based for-profit Cambie Surgery Corporation, infamous for unlawfully billing patients for services covered by Medicare – in some cases, up to six times the legal amount.

Day and his clinics are behind a constitutional challenge to Medicare, scheduled to go to trial in BC Supreme Court this September.

Dr. Rupinder Brar from Canadian Doctors for Medicare and Adam Lynes-Ford, BC Health Coalition at the BC Supreme Court.

The coalition opposing Day includes, among others, the Canadian Doctors for Medicare and the BC Health Coalition.

These organizations are concerned that Day’s case would increase health care costs while lengthening overall wait times for patients and erasing the fundamental Canadian principle of universal access to quality health care.

Also active in the coalition is a patient living with Limb-Girdle Muscular Dystrophy who could not afford and would not qualify for private health insurance under a US-style system.

“Our universal health care provides so much more than just hospitals,” said Rick Turner, BC Health Coalition co-chair.

“It ensures that patients have access to care, that doctors can focus on practicing medicine, and that Canadian businesses aren’t haggling over health benefits instead of creating new jobs. In September, we will present evidence to the Court that irrefutably demonstrates the benefits of our single-payer, public health care system.”

“Dr. Day claims that the defining principle at the heart of Canadian Medicare – that health services be provided according to patients’ needs, not their ability to pay – is unconstitutional.

“If Day wins, the public health care system that Canadians rely on – and overwhelmingly support – will be effectively dismantled right across the country,” said Turner.

The “Coalition Interveners” as they’re called in court will present evidence highlighting how Day’s challenge, if successful, would compromise patient health, disrupt medical practices, increase costs, and weaken the Canadian economy.

Last year, Day was ordered to disclose financial statements dating back five years. Investigators with the Medical Services Commission found evidence patients had been extra-billed for services covered by Medicare.

The case is scheduled to start September 8.

BC needs quality, affordable housing for seniors

By Barb Mikulec, Chair
COSCO Housing Committee

THE HOUSING issues facing seniors are complex and daunting. It is projected that the number of people aged 75 or over will increase by 85 percent in 15 years, and the overall population of Vancouver will grow by almost 40,000. These trends will continue to drive up housing costs at a time when Vancouver already has very low vacancy rates and the most expensive housing in Canada. Pensions are already stretched by rising costs for basics like electricity, heating, cable and food.

The question arises, will seniors be able to live in their own communities? Will communities be age-friendly? Will downsizing mean a loss of the services and neighbourhoods that are familiar to seniors? Are we serving blind or deaf citizens with appropriate housing and care homes with staff who are able to communicate and assist seniors to retain their cognitive skills?

It is important for housing to be safe, in a cultural space which respects the citizens. Clean air, water, diversity and livability are important. Housing needs to be available, decent and affordable. A large and growing number of seniors are living alone and do not have the support that comes with a shared household and this situation particularly affects older senior women. Shelter costs have risen while incomes have declined.

Ideally, seniors should be near transit, shopping, medical services and a community centre that provides programs for a healthy lifestyle and sociability.

A related concern is the problem facing tenants of co-ops who will lose rental assistance when the Federal Co-operative Housing Program shuts down in 2020. This affects more than 3,000 BC households. The province and federal government must step up to make sure the subsidies continue.

One program which makes rent more affordable is the Shelter Aid for Elderly Renters. It provides support to BC seniors age 60 or over who have low to moderate incomes. For eligibility criteria, contact www.bchousing.org or (604) 433-2218.

COSCO's policy is to actively work with and maintain solidarity with community organizations to promote affordable, safe, accessible and quality housing. Our housing committee is working to gather information and become vocal on housing issues.

We invite your comments to Barb Mikulec, chair at mikulec@telus.net.
